

Our son started school in 2016. We'd previously identified the school we were intending to apply for but then came to the open day and changed our minds. We were delighted when he was accepted by Burnt Yates. Our son finds change difficult. He's rather anxious and struggles to join in. He took weeks to settle into nursery, refused to attend parties and group activities and if honest, the thought of him starting school filled us with dread. However by day three, he was walking in without a backwards glance. He simply adores school and that is down to not just the care and support of the teaching and support staff but also his fellow pupils who are kind considerate and well behaved. They are excellent role models. He has come on in leaps and bounds – both socially and academically. The small classes allow each individual child to receive recognition for their strengths and support for areas of development. The teachers are fantastic and go above and beyond to support the children. We love the family feel of the school, how older pupils assist the younger ones and how younger siblings are involved in activities where possible. Everyone joins together to support the school and community as a whole. We couldn't have chosen a better place.
